About Barcelona

Barcelona is a city in Spain. It is the capital and biggest city of the self-sufficient network of Catalonia, just as the second most crowded region of Spain. With a populace of 1.6 million inside city limits, its urban region reaches out to various neighboring districts inside the Province of Barcelona and is home to around 4.8 million individuals, making it the 6th most crowded urban territory in the European Union after Paris, London, Madrid, the Ruhr region and Milan. It is perhaps the biggest city on the Mediterranean Sea, situated on the coast between the mouths of the waterways Llobregat and Besòs, and limited toward the west by the Serra de Collserola mountain range, the tallest pinnacle of which is 512 meters high.

Drawing upon its convention of inventive workmanship and craftsmanship, Barcelona is known for its honor winning modern plan. It additionally has a few congress halls, outstandingly Fira de Barcelona – the second biggest trade fair and exhibition centre in Europe, that host a rapidly developing number of national and global events every year. The absolute show floor space of Fira de Barcelona scenes is 405,000 m², not including Gran Via focus on the Plaza de Europa. Be that as it may, the Eurozone emergency and profound cuts in business travel influenced the Council's situating of the city as a conference hall. Barcelona has an extraordinary number of historical centers, which spread various regions and times. The National Museum of Art of Catalonia has a notable accumulation of Romanesque workmanship, while the Barcelona Museum of Contemporary Art centers around post-1945 Catalan and Spanish craftsmanship. The Fundació Joan Miró, Picasso Museum, and Fundació Antoni Tàpies hold significant accumulations of these incredibly famous specialists, just as the Can Framis Museum, concentrated on post-1960 Catalan Art possessed by Fundació Vila Casas. A few exhibition halls spread the fields of history and paleontology, similar to the Barcelona City History Museum (MUHBA), the Museum of the History of Catalonia, the Archeology Museum of Catalonia, the Barcelona Maritime Museum, and the exclusive Egyptian Museum.
