WHAT IS THE CONFERENCE ABOUT?

Nursing is a profession within the health care sector focused on the care of individuals, families, and communities so they may attain, maintain, or recover optimal health and quality of life.

Nurses develop a plan of care, working collaboratively with physicians, therapists, the patient, the patient's family, and other team members that focus on treating illness to improve quality of life.

Clinical nurse specialists and nurse practitioners diagnose health problems and prescribe medications and other therapies, depending on individual state regulations. Nurses may help coordinate the patient care performed by other members of a multidisciplinary health care team such as therapists, medical practitioners, and dietitians. Nurses provide care both interdependently, for example, with physicians, and independently as nursing professionals.

SCOPE AND IMPORTANCE OF NURSING

Nursing practice reflects all of the roles and activities undertaken by registered nurses to address the full range of human experiences and responses to health and illness. This includes health promotion, health protection, health maintenance, health restoration, rehabilitation, and palliation. Nursing practice is directed towards the goal of assisting clients to achieve and maintain optimal health in order to maximize quality of life across the lifespan.

The scope of nursing practice is not limited to specific tasks, functions or responsibilities but is a combination of knowledge, judgment and skill that allows the nurse to perform direct care giving and evaluate its impact, advocate for patients and for health, supervise and delegate to others, lead, manage, teach, undertake research and develop health policy for health care systems. The scope of practice is dynamic and responsive to changing health needs, knowledge development, and technological advances. Periodic review of scopes of practice is therefore essential to ensure consistency with current health needs and to support improved health outcomes.
